WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill have conferred anew on strategy for crushing Japan in the Pacific where Russia officially continues her role as a "neutral power."

The latest Roosevelt-Churchill meeting took place in Alexandria, Egypt, after conclusion February 11 of the historic Big-Three conference at Yalta, Crimea, on the Black Sea.

But another meeting planned by Mr. Roosevelt during his trip to see Churchill and Marshal Stalin did not come off—General Charles De Gaulle, president of the provisional government of France, reported that official business would not permit him to meet the President at Algiers, French North Africa.

In his first official comment on De Gaulle's rejection of his invitation, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"Questions of mutual interest and importance to France and the United States are pending. I wanted very much to see the general before leaving for home."

The whole dramatic story of the President's journey through the Middle East after the eight-day Yalta conference was told today in a lengthy dispatch released by the White House.

Aboard a United States man-of-war in Great Bitter Lake in the Suez Canal, Mr. Roosevelt received three storied rulers of eastern countries—King Farouk of Egypt, Emperor Haile Selassie I of Ethiopia and King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia.

The Roosevelt-Churchill conference at Alexandria lasted less than four hours. The official statement said this meeting "permitted new and important discussions of at least one subject which they could not take up before. That had to do with Japan and the war in the Pacific where Soviet Russia is a neutral power."

Churchill, the account continued, told Mr. Roosevelt "in blunt words that his government was determined to throw everything it (Please Turn To Page Six)

Russians Massing To Assault Berlin And Dresden, Claim

On Western Front, American Third and Seventh Armies Chop Out New Gains While to the North Canadians' Advance Threatens Gateway To Nazis' Industrial Ruhr Basin

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

By The Associated Press

The German high command said today Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukraine Army had smashed deeply into Nazi lines on a 65-mile front extending 50 to 60 miles from Berlin and Dresden, and the push for those two cities appeared to be under way again.

Canadian troops in the west repelled five vicious Nazi counterattacks in the Noyland sector two miles northwest of Calcar. Seven miles southwest of that objective, Scottish troops virtually have cleared Goch, desperately defended road center and northern Siegfried bastion, after 24 hours of fierce fighting.

Apparently Marshal Konev has beaten back tank and plane supported Nazi counterattacks. A German broadcast said fighting of the bitterest sort raged east of Dresden between the Bober and Neisse rivers.

The Germans said Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov poured masses of men into the front east of Berlin and that the storm "will break soon." A Moscow dispatch said Red Army movements now might be aimed at some of the most important consolidations of the war. The Germans counter-attacked with tanks and planes in the east, but Red Army troops clung to hard won positions due east of Berlin while carrying out what a Moscow dispatch said might be some of the most important consolidations in this phase of the war. A German broadcast said Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov poured masses of men into the front and that "the storm will break very soon."

Ruhr Gate Threatened

While Gen. H. D. Go Crerar's forces threatened the gateway to the industrial Ruhr, U. S. Third Army men in the center of the western front hacked out new gains. The U. S. Seventh Army seized Auersmacher, six miles southeast of Saarbrücken, taking 1,000 prisoners in a limited attack in the Saar Basin.

The Third Army has expanded its front in the Eifel Mountains to 55 miles with capture of seven more German towns, and has broken through the West Wall south of Bitburg, a vital German base.

Front dispatches said the Roer River on the U. S. First, Ninth and British Second Army fronts was dropping slowly. In this sector the Germans have been predicting an all-out assault for the Rhineland.

Crerar's forces were fighting furiously to outflank Calcar, rail and road hub 7½ miles southeast of captured Kleve and barely two miles from the Rhine. Faced with a growing menace to Wesel, base (Please Turn To Page Two)

YANK PRISONERS OF NAZIS FREED

Many Escape in Confusion as Reds Overrun Country

By DANIEL DE LUCE

MOSCOW, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The rapid advance of Russian armies has made possible the liberation of many United States officers and men from Nazi prison camps despite German attempts to evacuate prisoners from threatened areas.

Maj. Gen. J. Russell Deane, chief of the U. S. military mission in Moscow, said he had ordered an army detachment to proceed to Lublin—where some of the liberated prisoners have assembled—to begin measures for their repatriation. Other groups of prisoners are known to be sheltered in Praga and farther west.

The total number of men freed was not estimated, but between 200 and 400 officers alone are reported among the Americans now in the care of the Poles and the Russians. Most of these gained their liberty in the confusion of the German evacuation of Stalag Oflag 64 at Szubin, near Bydgoszcz.

Three officers from the camp have reached Moscow after hitch-hiking across Poland and part of Russia.

Capt. Ernest Gruenberg, 29, of New York City, said many of escaped Americans are fighting alongside the Russians inside Germany.

"Statements of our liberated soldiers and airmen all attest to fine treatment by the Poles and Russians whether military or civilian," Deane said.

All of the liberated prisoners reaching Moscow said the Germans had "provided only a starvation diet for Allied officers and men. They asserted a situation tantamount to mass murder would have resulted if Red cross parcels had not supplemented the diet.

YANKS CAPTURE ONE AIRFIELD IN FIERCE FIGHTING

Tokyo Blasted by Superforts And Nips Get Jitters; Manila Mop-up Goes On

By LEONARD MILLIMAN

(By The Associated Press)

In the fiercest fighting in Marine history, American Devil Dogs today seized the southern quarter of Iwo Island and its major airdrome, 750 miles south of Tokyo.

Two grim announcements from Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, showing no sign of jubilation at the conquest, today announced the veteran Fifth Marine Corps cut off the Japanese volcanic fortress on the southern end of the island by driving across Iwo, repulsed a fierce counterattack by a battalion of Japanese during the night and in the second day of their invasion established control of Motoyama Airfield No. 1.

Fiercest fighting was near the northern end of the strip where Japanese were firing down from heights at Marines crawling up the exposed slopes of the little island which is within fighter range of Tokyo.

Thousands of Marine reinforcements and strong artillery support were poured ashore from the great fleet of American ships still circling Iwo and pouring a continuous bombardment onto the enemy-held northern end.

Nimitz made no mention of tanks which eye-witnesses said had been thrown into the battle. Tokyo radio reported a tank battle underway on the plateau in the center of the island occupied by the prized southern airfield.

The Tokyo radio, reporting from a bomb-fired city where American raiding planes have knocked out 726 enemy aircraft since Friday, conceded that more than 20,000 Devil Dogs had been landed "by this morning."

From the 800 ships committed to the operation, the invaders are "bring up reinforcements and landing them." Tokyo acknowledged. It reported 150 Yank tanks "in one sector."

All front line reports today agreed one of the most savage fights of the war is in progress, with the Japanese firing from caves and pillboxes.

Lt. Gen. Holland M. Smith, Pacific marine commander watching the battle for the continuously bombarding U. S. fleet, described it as "the toughest fight we've run across in 168 years."

Nimitz described casualties as "numerous."

The entire area held by the marines was under fire from Japanese artillery and mortars. The area reaches from a two and a half mile beachhead on the southeastern shore, across the northern end of the airfield, to a 1,000-yard hold in the western shore.

The enemy air force made its first attempt to aid the cornered garrison, but were beaten off by night fighters. The 27th marine regiment met the nighttime counterattack on the airstrip and broke it up in a fierce battle.

Unconfirmed Japanese broadcasts reported a second marine landing on the northern shores of Iwo and told of tank battles. Americans were using tanks in the clean-up of Japanese pockets on Corregidor in the Philippines, while other armored units waited for heavy Howitzers to finish blasting down the thick walls of Intramuros, stronghold of suicide Jap troops in Manila. Thousands of civilians were trapped in the walled city with the Nipponese.

First Cavalry and 11th Airborne Division troops routed the enemy from Fort McKinley, Manila's southern fortress, and drove on south to take two villages. (Please Turn To Page Six)

Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

It seems but a short time ago that Paul W. Anschutz and his brother, George, delivered the Record-Herald in Washington C. H., and were among our liveliest carrier boys.

I never dreamed then that the two boys would be playing an important part in a World War, but that is just what they are doing now.

Paul is now a technical sergeant with the third replacement depot in Belgium, and George is a technical corporal with the engineering corps in England.

The boys' proud dad, William, came in the office and showed me a series of citations from various commanding officers of Sgt. Paul, for his outstanding work. There were four or five of these citations, and Paul sent them to his parents for safe keeping. They are something to be proud of, and I am not surprised that Paul has been given recognition for his outstanding work. Cpl. George is also doing some mighty fine work and has been commended for it.

The two former Record-Herald carrier boys come by their love for army service naturally, for Dad served three years in the regular army, most of the time in the Philippine Islands, where he assisted in putting down the Filipino insurrection away back yonder in 1907 and 1909.

"I know every foot of the ground over which the boys are fighting on Luzon and some of the other islands," Bill said, and explained that General McArthur's father was governor-general of the Philippines at the time.

That reminds me that the late Dr. L. P. Howell, as a U. S. medical officer, spent some time with the U. S. Army in the Philippines during the insurrection.

NURSES DRAFT OK'D BY MILITARY GROUP

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP)—A nurses draft bill applicable to all unmarried graduate nurses between 20 and 44 was approved today by the house military committee.

The legislation is intended to meet President Roosevelt's request for a law to provide 20,000 nurses for the army and the navy. It provides for deferment of veterans' administration nurses and gives the War Manpower Commission authority to order the deferment of any woman engaged in essential civilian nursing service.

The measure requires the induction of graduate cadet nurses before non-cadets may be drafted.

OPA VIOLATOR FINED

CLEVELAND, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Atlee D. Snyder of Canton was fined $4,000 for violating Office of Price Administration ceiling prices on used refrigerators and typewriters at his arraignment yesterday before Federal Judge Emerick B. Freed.

WIDDOWS APPOINTED OSU FOOTBALL COACH

Acting Coach Last Fall, He Succeeds Brown

COLUMBUS, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Carroll C. Widdows today was appointed head football coach at Ohio State University for the 1945 season.

Widdows, 41-year-old son of United Brethren Missionary parents interned in the Philippines, succeeds Lt. (Jg) Paul E. Brown who resigned recently to accept a post-war contract to coach the Cleveland team in the proposed All-America Professional Football League.

Widdows served as acting head coach last fall, after Brown went into the Navy, and directed Ohio State to its first unbeaten regular season since 1920 and the Western Conference championship.

St. John said Widdows also was advanced to the rank of full professor in the physical education department. He has been acting professor, Bixler was advanced from an instructor to an associate professor and Godfrey retains his title as associate professor.

FRANCE WILL ATTEND ALLIED CONFERENCE

PARIS, Feb. 20.—(AP)—France definitely intends to participate in the San Francisco conference on world security, and there never has been any question of her refusing a place at the United Nations Table, Quai D'Orsay officials said today.

The French, however, are withholding acceptance pending a complete study of all possible angles of the full report on decisions made by the Big Three, particularly concerning occupation of Germany, zones of occupation, and practical occupation of the European charter.

AFFAIRS ABROAD 'SMOOTHER,' CHURCHILL TELLS COMMONS

LONDON, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill declared in his first public reference today to the results of the Big Three Crimean Conference that "affairs abroad are rather smoother."

Churchill returned to London yesterday after stopovers at Athens and Cairo. He was greeted with a rousing cheer when he walked into the house of commons.

He and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden lost little time in

New Draft Program May Defer 1,250,000

Selective Service Official Acknowledges System Covers More Than 'Very Limited Number' as at First Announced for War Jobs Exclusive of Farms

By KARL R. BAUMAN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Instead of "a very limited number," as officially announced, approximately 1,250,000 men under 30 who hold key jobs in war industries stand to be deferred from the draft.

An official of Selective Service acknowledged today that the new program allows the deferment of 30 percent of all registrants classified 2-A and 2-B as of January 1.

Since 4,198,000 men were in the two classes, which cover deferments in occupations other than

MINESWEEPER LOST NEAR PHILIPPINES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The motor minesweeper YMS 48 has been lost in the Philippine area as a result of enemy action.

The Navy, announcing this today, made no reference to total casualties but said next of kin have been notified. Normal complement of a ship of that type is approximately 30 officers and men.

Loss of the YMS 48 brought the total of all naval vessels lost since the start of the war to 210 sunk. In addition 42 are listed as overdue and presumably lost, and ten destroyed to prevent capture, making a grand total of 262.

GIRL IS SHOT FATALLY BECAUSE 'MOVING TARGET'

CLEVELAND, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Carmen Ventriglio, 16, died today of a bullet wound police said was inflicted by a youth who shot at her "because she was a moving target."

Miss Ventriglio was shot Saturday night. Police said a 16-year-old youth had confessed firing at her "because she was a moving target."

GUARDS ARE BEATEN IN PRISON STRIKE

Laundry Facilities, Kitchens Paralyzed 25 Hours

CLEVELAND, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Two guards at the Warrensville Workhouse were beaten by a prisoner and the eating and laundry facilities at the institution were paralyzed for 25 hours Sunday night and yesterday by a strike of 60 prisoners, Superintendent John Heisman reported today.

Heisman said a general state of disorder had to be quelled by use of tear gas shells.

The superintendent said the trouble started Sunday when the guards attempted to take a prisoner, whom they said had sworn at them and was disobedient, from the dormitory in which 50 other prisoners were housed.

FIJI SENDS TAMBUA TO OHIO'S GOVERNOR

Whale's Tooth Symbol of Ties To Island

COLUMBUS, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche soon will receive a Tambua as a symbol that the war has forced close ties between the people of Fiji and the people of Ohio.

The Tambua—a polished whale's tooth with a sling of braided coconut fiber—is being sent by Lt. Col. Ratu J. L. V. Sukuna, senior chief of the Fiji Islands, in appreciation of the services of Ohio's 37th Division which trained in the islands at a time when the natives feared invasion by the Japanese.

Governor Lausche said the symbol is being brought to the United States by Harold Cooper, a British information officer, who expects to visit Ohio.

WFA TRIES NEW TACK IN PARITY PRICES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The War Food Administration tried a new tack today in its crop price support program—which may be followed in handling future parity payments to farmers.

The WFA announced it is limiting the government price support on the 1945 crop of dry edible peas to the actual production from the goal acreage.

The price support will apply only to the peas raised on the acreage allotted to an individual farmer and, if he plants additional acres to peas, the excess will not come under the support program.

So Green Troops Become Veterans!

Hundred American Boys Stand Up Under Acid Test in Baptism of Fire in Germany

By HAL BOYLE

WITH THE SECOND INFANTRY DIVISION IN GERMANY.—(AP)—The veterans in B Company were uneasy.

There were only 40 of them—and 100 green replacements were going into action for the first time. The fight ahead was one where soldiers like to feel that the men on either side know what they are doing.

They were on the outskirts of Rocherath. Three hundred yards ahead waited a long line of dug-in German infantrymen supported by machine guns.

This much had been learned in an unsuccessful, small-scale attack. Now the whole company was getting set to attack again—in hip-deep snow across a flat meadow in which only a few scrub bushes offered a possibility of concealment.

Gloomily the veterans wondered whether the new men—just off the boat after 17 weeks of basic training—had the stamina to keep marching across that terrain in heavy fire. It was a rough battle debut for any rookie.

Capt. Estel Elkins of Tacoma, Wash., was afraid that when the Germans began firing his new men would drop and freeze to the ground—a common tendency in green troops.

PROPOSED CURFEW WOULD MAKE FEW CHANGES HERE

ALL AMUSEMENT TO COME TO END AT 12 MIDNIGHT

Byrnes Request Comes as Second Federal Gas Ban Already Is in Effect

There won't be so many changes made in Washington C. H. night life when the midnight curfew War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes "requested" goes into effect Monday on all bars, night clubs, road houses, —all night life, public or private, from New York's carriage trade gas spots to the myriad juke box places in the nation's small towns.

The request for the curfew to start next Monday came as a 48-hour federal ban on use of natural gas in amusement places had been in effect nearly a day. The ban went into effect at 6 P.M. Monday and was to continue until 6 P.M. Wednesday. Ordered by the War Production Board, it embraces Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky and other states in the Appalachian area. A. E. Weatherly, manager of the Dayton Power and Light Company here, said he had no comments.

City Manager Walter Stambaugh said he anticipated no great change and that he felt managers of the few bars which did stay open after midnight would be willing to cooperate. "Most of the amusement places here are closed at midnight anyway," Stambaugh said.

Vaiden Long, police chief, pointed out that the Rendezvous Room and Son's Grill are the only downtown taverns which do not close at midnight now and he said he felt they would be willing to cooperate.

"We've got a war to win here—it's the patriotic thing to do," Long said.

He explained the Veterans of Foreign Wars Saturday night dances in Memorial Hall and the Friday night American Legion dances probably would come under the curfew also. While Long did not anticipate any objection to the curfew, he said: "If enforcement is needed—we'll give it."

Roadhouses in the county also will come under the curfew, Orlando Hays, the sheriff, said. He named only three—Loudner's, the Fireside Inn and Grimm's Grill in Madison Mills, which would be affected.

Any restaurants engaged exclusively in serving food will not come under the curfew, it was pointed out.

Byrnes' "request," having the effect of an order and backed by the disciplinary powers of four war agencies, was directed last night to "all places of entertainment."

Reaction among entertainment leaders ranged from enthusiastic assurances of support to declarations such as "we're ruined" and predictions of a return of the speakeasy.

The text of the Washington announcement said: "Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion James F. Byrnes announced today that he is requesting all places of entertainment to close by 12 o'clock

FRED T. VAN GUNDY RITES WEDNESDAY

Was Employed by D. T. & I. Railroad 26 Years

Funeral services for Fred T. VanGundy, 56, who was found dead of a heart attack in the Veterans of Foreign Wars room in Memorial Hall, early Monday, will be held at the Klever Funeral Home, Wednesday at 2 P. M. and burial will be made in the Washington C. H. Cemetery.

Friends may call at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Elliott, 313 Worley Street, until the hour of the funeral, Rev. George B. Parkin will conduct the services.

Mr. VanGundy was a veteran of World War I, and spent 18 months overseas with Co. 4, 54th Infantry.

He had been employed by the D. T. and I. Railroad for 26 years and was assistant foreman of bridge construction. Until two years ago he had resided in this city.

In addition to his widow he is survived by one brother, Worley Lee VanGundy, of New York City.

Arrangements for the funeral and burial would be asked for support.

Unofficially it was thought the ODT could act against offenders by preventing delivery of supplies and by exercising taxicab and bus controls. The WPB could cut off power, fuel and materials. The OPA could halt rations and fuel oil.

Noah L. Braunstein, spokesman for the New York Cafe Owners' Guild, said the request would result in "a lot of unemployment."

William Hopkins, president of the Philadelphia Cafe Owners' Association and first vice president of the National Tavern Association, said: "This is not a war move—it's a dry move. We voted on prohibition years ago, and we voted it out. Byrnes or no Byrnes, I'm going to operate as usual."

However, a preponderance of the reaction was favorable.

MRS. HARRY DARLING FUNERAL SERVICES

Funeral rites for Mrs. Harry C. Darling were held Monday at 3 P. M. at the Klever Funeral Home, and were conducted by Rev. George B. Parkin, who also read a hymn "In The Garden."

The floral gifts were lovely. Interment was made in the Washington C. H. Cemetery.

The pallbearers were: W. S. Curl, Pat Harding, Don Wagner and Charles Halahan.

FAREWELL SERVICES FOR JOSEPH G. ESTLE

Rev. Henry Leeth conducted the funeral services for Joseph G. Estle, who died Friday afternoon at his home on Elm Street.

The services were held at the House of Prayer on Washington Avenue, Monday at 2 P. M. and were largely attended.

Rev. C. H. Dettly assisted Rev. Leeth with the services.

There were many lovely floral gifts, and these were cared for by Denajan Estle, Thelma Christman, Betty Christman and Marjorie Bailey.

Mrs. Nona Knisley and Mrs. Gladys Sibole sang the three hymns "Last Mile of the Way," "City on The Hill" and "Home Over There." Mrs. Knisley was at the piano.

Burial was made in the Washington C. H. Cemetery.

The pallbearers were: Rev. Delbert Harper, Rev. C. H. Dettly, Oat Gilmore, Walter Bailey and Forest Ritenhouse.

tion at the northwest corner of the Ruhr, the Germans fought back bitterly.

Since the start of the offensive Crerar's troops have pushed 17 miles and taken more than 9,000 prisoners.

Bad weather limited tactical support in the air yesterday, but more than 1,000 U. S. heavy bombers hit Ruhr rail centers leading to the battlefield.

Reds Set For Big Push Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukraine Army and Zhukov's First White Russian Army maneuvering to weld their flanks securely for the all-out blow at Berlin, warding off German thrusts in the Cossien-Guben salient. Their moves, a Moscow dispatch said, promised soon to pay big dividends when the Berlin drive resumes.

To the northeast in the Polish corridor, the Russians took Nowe (Neuenburg), only 47 miles south of Danzig. Far to the south, in the big bend of the Danube, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine Army maneuvered to meet a strong attack by Germans attempting to stem his march on Bratislava and Vienna.

Moscow dispatches said Nazi reserves were attacking in considerable strength, but were silent on enemy claims of successes on the approaches to Berlin. The Germans said Knoev was forced to withdraw from Guben, key road hub on the east bank of the Neisse River, 51 miles southeast of Berlin. Moscow never claimed capture of the city. German broadcasts also asserted that reinforced Nazi troops recaptured Sommerfeld, Sorau and Sagan on a 35-mile front southeast of Guben, all of which fell last week.

The siege rings on Koenigsberg and Breslau were tightened. Air Assault Continues Allied aircraft rumbled into the skies over Germany again today in continuation of the air offensive that has put an average of 1,200 heavy bombers over the Reich every 24 hours for a week.

This is Directive Twenty-seven pursuant to paragraphs (B) (3), (B) (4) and (G) of Utilities Order U-7. This directive applies to all natural and mixed gas companies in the District of Columbia and the following states: New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Ohio. Because of the critical gas shortage now existing on the major gas systems in these areas, which has resulted in a stoppage of vital war production, all natural and mixed gas companies in the above-named areas are hereby directed to give notices of curtailment by radio, newspaper advertisement, or otherwise, to all places of amusement which they serve. These places of amusement as consumers are prohibited from accepting deliveries of natural or mixed gas from 6:00 P. M. Central War Time on Monday, February 19, 1945, until 6:00 P. M. Central War Time on Wednesday, February 21, 1945, unless otherwise notified by the War Production Board. Places of amusement include all consumers such as Theaters, moving picture houses, bowling alleys, night clubs, bars, saloons, etc. In effecting this curtailment the affected consumers may accept deliveries of gas only to the minimum extent necessary to prevent permanent damage to facilities or equipment. All natural and mixed gas companies are further requested to urge all state and local officials to curtail the acceptance of deliveries of gas by public institutions, libraries, museums, schools, etc., to the minimum consistent with public health and safety.

THE WAR TODAY

—By DEWITT MACKENZIE—

Field Marshal Montgomery's spirited order-of-the-day to his troops, who are doing such a grand job in turning the German northern flank in the Goch sector of the flooded Rhineland, is a clear call to an offensive—the "final round"—which will continue without stop until the "knockout blow."

The always colorful Monty patently is signalling the "kill," which can only mean that General Eisenhower is preparing to intensify his attack. The "last round" may be long and difficult but "we have got our enemy where we want him." Well, that's the talk to give 'em, but the Marshal leaves it to us to figure out what sort of operation the Western Allies are going to undertake as their contribution to the coup de grace, and how long the Nazis may be expected to stand up under it. Those aren't easy questions to answer, but let's have a go at them.

Despite the foulest sort of weather, mud and floods, General Ike has kept up his everlasting punches at the Siegfried defenses and has steadily improved his position. He appears to be maneuvering to force Nazi Field Marshal Van Rundstedt to accept battle on the open Cologne Plain where Allied tanks could be used. That was what the Allied chief was aiming at when Rundstedt launched his offensive into Belgium in December and upset our apple-cart. Now, as ever, Eisenhower's object is to annihilate Rundstedt's forces, and then cross the Rhine into the Ruhr.

Ultimately Rundstedt will either accept the challenge to fight on the plain, or he will try to withdraw across the Rhine. The latter would be desperately hazardous. One of the most difficult military operations is to cross a great river with an army in retreat, especially in these days of air-power.

Now about that time element: Many things are contributing to the dissolution of Hitler's Third Reich, which most certainly is speeding towards total collapse, but one of the chief factors of the war will be the weather. That's the prime source of the mixed fortunes of war in Western Europe at this time of year.

As this column has remarked previously, when things have reached such a state of chaos as now exists in Germany, the end might come at any time. Barring a break in morale, Nazi endurance will depend on military developments, and they in turn will depend heavily on the weather. Bad weather has been holding up our offensive in the Rhineland.

One of the greatest handicaps which the Allies suffer as the result of bad weather is the hamstringing of the air services. The heavy bombers can do some work by instrument, but frequently the tactical fleets—the fighter-bombers which depend on visibility rather than on instruments—are grounded.

We had a striking illustration of that last week when, after a long spell of bad flying weather, the Allied fleets were able to get into action again and raised havoc throughout the Reich. In one period of 48 hours we had 11,000 planes over Germany, and Red planes swarmed the Eastern Front.

The results were catastrophic for the Hitlerites. Not only did wholesale cooperation with the Red Armies greatly aid the Russian offensive, but the bombers raked centers like Berlin and Dresden, tore at Hitler's rapidly disappearing war industries, and poured destruction into his transportation systems.

It need hardly be added that bombardment of cities is a fierce strain on civilian morale. However, let's say the Germans can "take it." The fact remains Hitler

TOTAL BIRTHS 25 IN JANUARY AND DEATHS 29

Deaths in City Number 18 And Births 15 During Past Month

During the month of January there were 25 births and 29 deaths recorded in Fayette County, and it is the second month recently that births reported are not as great as the number of deaths recorded.

In Washington C. H. the number of births was 15 and deaths 18, while in other districts in the county they were divided as follows:

Bloomington, one death; Jeffersonville, two births and one death; Green township, one death; Jefferson township, one birth and three deaths; Madison township, one death; Marion township, one death; Paint township, one death; Perry township, four births and one death; Union township, two births; Wayne township, one birth and one death.

No deaths or births were reported in Milledgeville, Ota, Jasper township, Concord township and West Holland.

The list of births announced follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Glendon Elwood Kelley, son, Glenn Elwood, 1254 E. Rawling St.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Raymond Creamer, son, Roy Raymond, Jeffersonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lewis Rittenhouse, daughter, Nancy Lee, Jeffersonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wilson, son, 832 Columbus Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Dowler, daughter, Diane Elizabeth, rural route.

Mr. and Mrs. George LeHew, daughter, Beva Rae, 1318 Washington Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Leeth, daughter, Linda Kay, 404 Western Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. David Seymour, daughter, 712 W. Market St.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. Ater, daughter, Willard and Carolyn Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurman E. Burnett, daughter, Sarah Jane, 628 Blackstone.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lightie, son, Chester Leon, Vine St.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Laufner, son, Charles, Jr., 837 Washington Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Eavertt Bain, son, Thomas Eavertt, 708 Campbell St.

Mr. and Mrs. Orie Bellar, son, Orie, Jr., 1139 E. Paint St.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Bunch, son, Thomas Benjamin, city.

Mr. and Mrs. Milbourne L. Flee, son, Stephen Lawrence, 117 W. Paint St. and can't stand the material damage to his war machine.

The Allied difficulty is that bad flying weather is likely to continue in Western Europe until about the first of April. Then the spring thaws will turn Eastern Europe into a bog. Time will tell whether these things will bring Hitler a respite. We must figure that they might.

HUNDRED GREEN TROOPS BECOME VETERANS WHEN PUT TO TEST AT FRONT

"If they do that we're done for," he said. "We'll be trapped in the field and wet snow will clog our guns. We'd better try marching fire."

The men began to fire with their M1s and automatic rifles on the German positions to pin down the Jerries. Gradually the tempo was stepped up until every American gun was blazing.

Then the company rose simultaneously and every man started marching toward the German lines a long 300 yards away. They fired at every step. They used tracer bullets for psychological effect and because it was easier for the new men to adjust their fire with them.

"You're shooting too low. Lift your fire a little," S-Sgt. John Vogan of St. Louis called to a group of new men.

"Keep going!" shouted Lt. Lloyd L. Crusius of Bloomington, Ill. An enemy machine-gun bullet clipped his boot and he slipped and fell. The men hesitated.

"Keep going!" Crusius called. He climbed unhurt to his feet and ploughed forward. His men followed.

Now the fighting was heavy. One of the new automatic riflemen, Pvt. Everett B. Thurston of Canton, N. Y., saw his ammunition bearer go down. He took the bandoliers of ammunition from the wounded man, slung them over his shoulder and kept on. A moment later he was pumping bullets into the German nest.

Sgt. Vogan emptied his carbine into a machine-gun position and finished it with grenades. One of the enemy played dead and then tried to shoot Vogan. One of the boys "just off the boat" killed him.

They were in the midst of the German line now and firing at point-blank range.

Two green men—Pvt. Charles G. Hodge of Apollo, Pa., and Pvt. Zed Jenkins of DeWitt, Mo., were covering each other. Hodge aimed at a machine-gunner who was rising up to take a shot at him. He pulled the trigger and heard an empty click. He saw the German gunner start to squeeze his trigger and then topple over dead. Jenkins had dropped him with one shot.

So it went—yard by yard—until the long, deadly walk was over. Machine-guns were silent at last and there were 55 dead Germans in the snow. The rest had fled.

Company B then tended to its casualties. There were only five. The men of the company looked at each other with tired grins. They were all veterans now.

NURSE TRAINING OPENED TO GIRLS

17 Schools in State Ready To Enroll 225 in Corps

Opportunity for education for a lifetime professional career is open to 255 eligible girls in 17 schools of nursing in the state of Ohio through membership on the U. S. Cadet Nurse Corps under U. S. Public Health Service.

These all-expense scholarships are available to young women between the ages of 18 and 35, high school graduates or college students in good scholastic standing, with sound health and approved by the School of Nursing of their choice.

A young woman who enrolls as a cadet nurse is aiding the war effort from the moment she enters Nursing School. Dr. Thomas Perran, surgeon general, U. S. Public Health Service under whose office the corps is administered, stated before the House committee on military affairs: "Our best estimates are that students are now giving 80 percent of the nursing care in their associated hospitals. By replacing graduate nurses who have already gone into the military service, the U. S. Cadet Nurse Corps has prevented a collapse of nursing care in civilian hospitals. We can't, however, measure what the loss to the country would have been if civilian nursing had collapsed, any more than we could measure the cost of failure on the Normandy beachheads. We can, however, recognize the practical contribution already made by the thousands of loyal and tireless members of the U. S. Cadet Nurse Corps."

Miss Catherine Forrest, state recruitment chairman, said, "Young women who join the Cadet Nurse Corps and who begin their training this Spring will be able to render service which will go a long way toward helping replace the graduate nurses that Ohio must supply for the military service between now and the end of June."

Miss Forrest also said, "At the same time, these cadets will be preparing for future service in a profession on which great demands will be made as long as they are continued and during postwar years."

Midyear high school graduates and young women with college background are urged to give serious consideration to the opportunities for both service and professional education offered by the corps.

Full information about school and the cadet corps plan may be obtained by writing to Miss Forrest, Ohio Nursing Council for War Service, 50 East Broad Street, Columbus.

Former Fayette Countian Wins $200 in War Bonds

Joe Murphy Hands War Bond to Joe Roy Stuckey

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Stuckey of the Columbus Road today have every right to be proud of their 17 year old grandson, Joe Roy Stuckey, a senior in Wilmington High School and former Fayette Countian.

Born in Albuquerque, New Mexico, Joe attended Bloomington schools before his family moved to Clinton County.

Joe, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Stuckey of near Wilmington today has $200 in War Bonds tucked away—War Bonds he won with an essay he wrote October 6, 1944, only a few hours before his leg was broken in the Wilmington-Hillsboro football game.

Titled, "Why I Am Proud To Be An American," Joe's essay came out on top in a contest which covered 133 cities in four states. In Wilmington, the contest was sponsored by the Murphy Theater in connection with the world premiere showing of "An American Romance." When Joe's essay won the Wilmington contest and a $25 War Bond, it became eligible for the regional contest.

Joe R. Murphy, manager of the Murphy Theater, presented the $200 War Bond to Joe in a special assembly at Wilmington High School Wednesday, J. E. Watson, exploitation representative of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in Cincinnati, was in Wilmington Wednesday to purchase the bonds and attend the presentation.

The $25 bond was presented to Joe in the Springfield City Hospital while he was recovering from his injury. Second prize winner in the four-state contest which included Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia, was John Morris of St. Marys and third prize went to Norma Anderson of Shelbyville, Indiana.

Nations, Too, Can Die

The story has oft been told about the half-witted farmer who conducted an experiment with his horses. He had come to the conclusion that it was costing him too much to feed them, and so one day he cut down on their quantity of food. This seemingly did not adversely affect their health or efficiency, so he made a further curtailment, still with no apparent harmful results.

What this farmer overlooked was that his horses had been well fed over a long period of time and had built up a reservoir of fat, upon which they were drawing to carry on. So he kept cutting down gradually until, finally he quit feeding them entirely. One of his neighbors to whom he had boasted of his scheme, asked him how it had worked out. "Oh! The experiment was a huge success as far as I was able to carry on with it, but darned if the horses didn't die and I wasn't able to finish it."

It's a silly story, isn't it? It seems incredible that any farmer ever lived who could have been that foolish. Most certainly not an American farmer. Perhaps it really never happened.

But whether real or imaginary, there is a deadly parallel between that story and what is going on in America today. Our government has been conducting what it thinks is a new experiment. It isn't new because over the centuries many nations have carried on similar experiments and like the horses of the foolish farmer, those nations have died—all of them.

What those who are engineering this great American experiment have neglected to take into account is that nations are exactly like horses in that they too must eat. Nations do not feed on oats and grass but on taxes—taxes which are paid by the citizens to enable government to carry on its functions for the welfare and protection of its citizens.

Therefore, it would seem like exercising good horse-sense to make sure there always will be plenty of taxpayers, able to pay into the government that very necessary feed money. Nothing should ever be done to cut down the number of individuals or groups upon whom government can levy taxes, and what is more important, be able to collect them.

Unfortunately, our American experimenters already have succeeded in whittling off a considerable number of former taxpayers and if their experiment is not called to a halt, eventually they will eliminate every one of them.

When the government takes over a privately-owned business or sets up a business of its own in competition with a private business, it wipes out some taxpayers, because a government-owned business does not pay any taxes. It is easy to realize then, that if the socialistic planners who are moving heaven and earth to have Uncle Sam take over all business in this country, succeed in carrying out their plan, this nation one day will find itself without taxes now paid by hundreds of thousands of private enterprises and industries.

Just like the farmer's horses, this nation has a lot of fat on its bones, accumu-

Hints on Etiquette

Don't tell risqué stories in mixed company (or any time, for that matter). Many a social career has been ruined by this habit.

Today's Horoscope

Distinguishing attributes of people who are celebrating birthdays today are personal pride and a propensity for leadership. Your emotions are unstable and easily excited, however, so beware of them. Practice self-control and learn to temper your passions which prompt you to love and hate with tremendous intensity. If your services warrant an increase in salary, ask for it. Business merit is measured in terms of money; therefore, seek success in the higher income bracket. Ask for a special favor today if you need one.

lated over a century and a half of nutritious and ample feeding—in fact, more fat than any other nation has ever had in all history. It is going to take a while longer to kill off America than was the case with those other countries that were seduced by the economic planners of their day, who painted roseate pictures of equal distribution of wealth and security for all from cradle to grave. But, longer though it may take to reduce America from its position as the fattest and most important nation of the world, to a skinny, underfed, insignificant country, that sad state of emaciation is inevitable if the starry-eyed dreamers are allowed to continue to have influence at Washington.

The story about the foolish farmer who starved his horses may be pure fiction, but there is nothing fictional about the "planners" who either through sheer stupidity or with malicious intent, are steering America along a course that leads to starvation and death.

East and West

Party politics are discarded at Washington, at least for a little while, as President and Congress plunge into the great, vital region of international affairs. With two great wars to be won and liquidated, it is generally recognized that the issues transcend mere party loyalty and enter the region of world statesmanship, where both Congress and national opinion should have a big and honorable part to play.

It was important that President Roosevelt selected two such prominent and able Republicans as Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan and Commander Harold Stassen of Minnesota to participate in the forthcoming plans for a great international peace organization. Thus President Wilson's tragic failure a generation ago to recognize the power and dignity of Congress, and particularly of the United States Senate, is avoided. It was also a happy thought to stage the forthcoming conference of the United Nations at San Francisco, thus treating the Far West with the consideration it deserves especially in this war.

Diet and Health

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IN SOME men who engage in hard types of work, or in athletics, the shoulder may become dislocated. When this happens but once in an individual, it is usually not a matter for too great concern. The shoulder, as a general rule, can be put back in place by the physician. In some instances, however, the shoulder may become repeatedly dislocated.

Now and then, any movement of the arm above the shoulder level may suffice to throw the joint out of place. In certain instances of this sort, the patient may learn to put the shoulder back in place by wiggling the arm. When the shoulder is examined it usually appears to be normal. There is no swelling nor wasting of the muscles and no tenderness or limitation of movement.

It would appear that in persons who have recurrent dislocations of the shoulder, the trouble is due to the fact that the glenoid ligament, which is attached to the rim of the bone over the shoulder joint, becomes detached. As long as this

CORPSES AT INDIAN STONES by Philip Wylie

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE
Aggie yawned and started toward the stairs. "There's somebody in this vicinity so clever, and so intuitive, that the less I think about it the better I'll sleep!" He called down, a moment later, "Incidentally, Sarah, have Winkle get me about three dozen steel traps, will you? I was serious about that. Fox traps. And good night!"
On a day in early July, a dazzling day, of the sort that makes people who cannot swim wish they had been braver, and people who can, hasten to the nearest lake, river or pool, Agamemnon Telemachus Plum, A.B., B.S., M.A., Litt.D., Ph.D., and Phi Beta Kappa as a matter of course—on the edge of Lower Lake at Indian Stones, with his feet in the water up to the ankles. Two weeks in the mountains had made changes in the eminent paleontologist. The most readily discernible change was superficial: his skin was now as brown as a filibuster, instead of the academy white which it had been. His beard was neater and shorter. Another change was in his social station. That is to say, as he sat on the tepid margin of the pond, people spoke to him amiably and in such a way as to suggest esteem. A child, aged about six, threw itself on his shoulders and shouted, "Divine in me, Aggie!"
Aggie laughed and said, "Soon. As soon as I go overboard."
Mrs. Drayman busied herself with knitting in a wicker chair. She had a problem in her mind rather than in the stitches. "I—I understand Sarah has asked Beth to keep house for you?"
Two weeks ago, Aggie would have blushed and stammered. Two weeks ago, the fact that a young woman had been invited to move in with himself and his aunt would have caused him to depart from Indian Stones. Now, his embarrassment was only moderate. "Why, yes, Company. Someone to run the place for us. Sarah's better—both convalescing slowly. And after all, Beth's at work ends."
"Huh!" Aukh! Mrs. Drayman. Meaning, Aggie thought, that Mrs. D. is onto the fact that Sarah will go to any lengths to arrange things between Beth and me. Mrs. D.—and the rest of Indian Stones. He let the insinuating syllable hang in the air for a while. He had almost packed up when Sarah suggested it. But not quite. He was uncertain why he had stayed. Perhaps out of scientific curiosity—to see how a young and very handsome woman behaved, from a proximate viewpoint. Of perhaps because he had grown somewhat more blasé, owing to the fact that he had recently been interviewed by reporters, policemen, detectives, coroners, and the like—the fact that the papers had been full of his name and his statements—and the fact that Indian Stones had changed its opinion of him. He was no longer regarded as a bearded, bookish, anachronism.
He was thought of, rather, as something of a fireball. The sort of man who would ingeniously and calmly break in on a dead body in the middle of night, using an automobile jack. The sort of fellow who would barge into a secret cellar all alone and without a weapon, when there lurked in it a dangerous thief. A man in whom a captain of the State Police had implicit trust. A man, moreover—according to testimony of numerous wide-eyed kids—who could tell the greatest stories on earth about Indians and Eskimos and African natives—every one of them true.
Aggie yawned. It was very restful. No more horror or alarm. Jim Calder buried—and his family trying to forget. Danielle gone.
He saw that Mrs. Drayman was about to cluck some more, so he overrode the topic. "An extraordinarily lovely day," he said. She yawned reluctantly. "Quite lovely. Quite."
"The lake," he continued, "is especially—vivid."
"I prefer Upper Lake," she replied, still wanting to hear further items about Beth's prospective residence with the Plums. "It's more private—and nearer our cottage. Still—since the bay water's been spoiled—we've had to swim here. It's turned quite brown, you know. Algae—of some sort of weeds, I presume. Very nasty and nothing like it ever happened before. Where is Beth, by the way?"
"Changing her clothes," he answered calmly. "Going in with me." He looked at the other bathers. "Us." His dark eyes defied the upraised stare of Mrs. Drayman. "Extraordinary, too, the way things have settled down," he said. Since Mrs. D. was the mother-in-law of the son of the deceased Mr. Calder, her interest in the drama at Indian Stones was second to nothing else. "Isn't it? I was terribly upset for days. Our Bill's predicament was so embarrassing! He did disapprove of his father, you know. My Martha, too. And that Davis girl—practically forcing William to go on on Garnet Knob that night—Jim was found! It was providential that you followed them—and listened! Otherwise—what could my poor daughter have thought?"
"The worst," answered Aggie solemnly.
Mrs. Drayman did not know she was being kidded. "Yes! Exactly! As it was, she's kept Bill in the doghouse practically ever since!"
"Hmhm," said Aggie. "She ought to let up, about now. By-gones. I find Bill Calder an extremely likable chap."
"I disagree," Mrs. D. responded. "Not about Bill. He's generous enough, as young men go. About Martha letting up. Danielle will be back shortly—"
Aggie sat up straighter. "That's

Heavy Business Has Its Lighter Side

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—(AP)—"Roses are red, violets are blue, I am in the army, why ain't you?" That is just one of the many things the Bureau of Internal Revenue has to put up with in its efforts to collect every penny of revenue it believes Uncle Sam is entitled to.

That little poem, said Joseph D. Nunan, Jr., revenue commissioner, was sent in by a soldier who owed "something like $7 or $8" and who had gone to the west coast "before he was caught up."

Nunan cited it during testimony before the house appropriations committee in its consideration of the annual treasury supply bill.

Many other little items brightened up the otherwise dull and cumbersome testimony which, made public today, filled 672 printed pages.

Here are some of them: Counterfeiting is on the down-grade, losses suffered by victims of this shady business amounted to only $47,000 last year. So, also, is the practice of forging signatures to government checks, thanks to the "know your endorser" campaign. The rate of forgeries per 1,000,000 checks fell to 37 last year; it had been around 99 before the campaign started.

Since the war started, the treasury has received $22,959 donations from individuals wanting to give something to the cause. They total more than $6,600,000, the largest being $400,000 for construction of a gymnasium at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

Remember those billboard-sized dollar bills? Well, at the end of 1944 there were 42,948,788 pieces of the old paper currency, of all denominations, in circulation, with a value of $170,969,930.

Treasury experts have estimated at $300,208,000 the value of advertising contributed in support of war bond drives between May 1, 1941 and September 30, 1944. The total includes $178,800,000 on the radio; $76,688,000 in newspapers; $24,664,000 in magazines; $19,486,000 in outdoor advertising; and $570,000 in car cards.

Despite the fact many holders of war bonds have cashed in the securities, almost 88 cents out of every savings bond dollar that has come into the treasury since 1941 has remained available for the prosecution of the war.

A table given the appropriations committee bears out the old saying that taxes keep getting higher. It shows that from 1887, when it was $2.00, the per capita federal tax burden in the United States has rocketed to $289.79 in 1944. However, the cost of collection per $100 of revenue reached a new low, 32 cents, last year. Back in 1887 it cost Uncle Sam $3.40 to collect each $100 he received from the taxpayers.

If you possessed $183.38 last December 31, you were an average person. Money in circulation on that date was $25,307,000,000, or $183.23 per capita on the basis of 138,000,000 men, women and children. Somebody holding out on you?"

So far as the treasury is concerned, the current cigarette shortage is being caused largely by large supplies for the armed forces. A study of statistics, department officials said, indicates that heavy withdrawals of tax-free smokes for the fighting men is a major contributing factor to the civilian shortage.

Here's a new war-born racket turned up by the postal inspectors: A mailbox burglar steals a check that has been mailed to somebody.

Then he goes to a blood donors' bank and patriotically gives a pint of blood—in the name of the payee on the stolen check.

For the blood donations he gets a certificate, made out to the name he has assumed. He uses the blood donor certificate for identification, and cashes the stolen check.

That new wrinkle to an old trick was disclosed today by the testimony of postal officials made public by the house appropriations committee.

Here's another new one that turned up last year: In a midwestern state a couple of fellows advertised a puzzle contest. They got 600,000 replies—all correct because the puzzle was simple.

Washington at a Glance By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — A rare thing developed in the House of Representatives when the Senate-passed George bill was turned over to the lower chamber for consideration.

The House found itself virtually in position to confirm a cabinet member, a preogative lodged solely in the Senate.

The George bill, as you know, was a compromise between those for and against confirming Henry A. Wallace as secretary of Commerce, with all the vast Reconstruction Finance Corp. lending powers incorporated in the Commerce Department. Senator George of Georgia proposed that the RFC be separated from Commerce, and it was agreed the confirmation of Wallace would be postponed until the bill had cleared.

When administration followers in the Senate discovered that Wallace couldn't be confirmed if they insisted on his taking over the RFC, they came over to the compromise—rather hastily after President Roosevelt sent word that he would sign the George bill.

So it went to the House, which rarely is able to do more than speechify for or against Presidential appointees.

The House does have one check on departments, agencies and bureaus. It controls the purse strings. It hasn't been uncommon for the House, which originates all appropriations, to cut off funds for some agency if its appointive chief were particularly out of favor with House members. But in those instances, the House had to reckon with the Senate and often accept compromises from the upper chamber.

In the case of the George bill, the shoe appeared on the other foot. The House was a few days slow to realize the situation, but when opponents of Wallace in the south wing of the capitol did wake up, they saw that a little finagling might block the Wallace confirmation.

Parliamentary procedures are pretty dull, but briefly the idea was to burden the George bill with amendments which would not be acceptable to the Senate.

The Senate thus would have to vote on the confirmation of Wallace with all Commerce lending agencies intact. Observers and Capitol Hill strategists were confident that if that were the case Wallace would be turned down.

The Wallace backers didn't fail to appreciate the situation. Led by Speaker Rayburn, they came out immediately for an amendment to remove the secretary of commerce from the Export-Import Bank board, hoping this would clear the way for Senate confirmation of Wallace on March 1.

A good many battles which have been fought on the home front between the administration and opponents have broken precedents. None has been more unusual than this, which placed the House in the position of saying whether a cabinet nominee would be confirmed. Several students of Congress are certain it never happened before. For, whatever happens to Wallace now, the whole of Congress must be responsible.

Ten Pledges Of Gradale Have Instructions

Bedlam broke out in the Record-Herald club rooms, Monday evening, when ten pledges of Alpha Chapter of Gradale sorority were handed their sheet of instructions for "Hell Week," by Mrs. Dale Ward, arrangements chairman.

Preceding this Primus Jayne Sexton introduced the pledges and gave a brief outline of Gradale background, its history of forming and past accomplishments. She then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Ward who explained the "do's and don'ts" of the initiation requirements.

It was announced the formal induction dinner will be held Monday evening, February twenty-sixth at six-thirty, in Mad-dux's Restaurant, after which the induction ceremony will be carried out in the Record-Herald club rooms.

At the conclusion of this, Mrs. Ben Timmons, pro-primus gave a lengthier outline of Gradale aims, ideals and rules. Pledges of the sorority are Misses Helen Crampton, Rosemary Dennison, Jane Cummings, Dorothy Nicely, JoAnn Crouse, Cassette Larrimer, Mrs. Richard Rankin, Mrs. Edward Hoskins, Mrs. Paul Chaffin and Mrs. Ruth Glass.

President's Home Scene of Meeting

Mrs. Faye Mayo was hostess to a number of Wesleyan Service Guild members of Grace Methodist Church who met at her home on South Fayette Street, Monday evening, for the February meeting when Rev. Louis B. Rodgers, retired missionary who spent 32 years in Burma as a teacher and missionary, was guest speaker.

The business meeting was led by Mrs. Mayo, during which she asked for reports from various officers. Mrs. Ethyl McElwain, secretary of spiritual life had charge of the devotionals, taking as her topic, "Behold, I Stand At The Door And Knock."

Mrs. Loreah O'Brian, program leader, then introduced Rev. Rodgers, who entertained his audience with a lengthy account of the Burmese people, the seasons of weather and spoke of the various religions of which Christianity, Voodoo and Mohammedism are only a few. He said there is no moral law in the Voodoo language. He displayed various articles of clothing worn by both men and women and he demonstrated the ease they changed costumes. Some of this clothing was fashioned of real silk and embroidered in beautiful shades and hues of exotic colors. He also showed several samples of handiwork such as scarves, handbags and children's clothing. Then there were articles made of bamboo, teakwood and silver which he displayed as a concluding touch to his address.

During the social hour which followed, the hostess served seasonal refreshments. The hostess was assisted by Miss Marian Christopher, Miss Donna Smith, Miss Ethel Arnold, Mrs. Lucille Leach and Mrs. Ethyl McElwain.

Turkey Dinner Honors Birthday on Sunday

An informal gathering was enjoyed on Sunday when Mrs. George Bogges celebrated her birthday anniversary at her home with an elaborate turkey dinner at the noon hour.

Those enjoying the dinner and the opportunity to visit in the afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Bogges and son, Louis Irvin, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Greider and children, Phyllis and Donnie, all of Springfield and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bogges.

Book Review Given By Mrs. Murray At Mothers' Circle

"Your Kids and Mine" by Joe E. Brown, was the title of the book review given in a very interesting and entertaining manner by Mrs. A. B. Murray at the Mothers' Circle meeting, Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Darrell Thornton.

Preceding the book review, Mrs. N. M. Reiff, president, conducted a brief business meeting during which it was voted to donate $25 to the American Red Cross. Various means of money making around Easter time were discussed, and it was decided to sell colored Easter eggs downtown during that season.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Otis Core took the floor as auctioneer and sold the articles, which ranged from clothing to foodstuffs, brought by the members for the sale. A hilarious hour was galley enjoyed by the members, the witty auctioneer being the center of all attention.

Mrs. Murray was then introduced to give her review which was of especial interest to the forty members attending. At the conclusion, the auction sale was resumed during the serving of refreshments.

The Thornton home was decorated nicely with bouquets of red carnations and other cut flowers and a George Washington birthday motif was carried out in the decorations and appointments when delicious refreshments were served. An informal hour of visiting rounded out the many pleasures of the evening.

Easter Gift To Be Sent To Cleveland Home

Members of the Crusaders Class of the North Street Church of Christ enjoyed the February meeting at the home of Rev. and Mrs. R. Byron Carver on Monday evening with Miss Marcia Highley, class president, conducting the session and Mrs. Paul Thornhill leading the devotionals.

It was decided that the class would send a special Easter gift to Betty Jean Pratt at the Cleveland Christian Home and that members would plan to attend the next youth rally held by the Churches of Christ in Columbus.

A miniature log cabin centered the table used in serving the refreshments buffet style and tall lighted red candles stood at either end. Plates, napkins and the appetizing refreshments cleverly carried out the motif of the evening.

Sugar Grove WCTU Met At Mrs. Frank Haines'

The Sugar Grove WCTU met at the home of the president, Mrs. Augusta Haines at two o'clock.

Mrs. Marie Marine had the devotionals, followed by the business meeting conducted by the president, Mrs. Gladys Hays was appointed to the office of county corresponding secretary. The group heartily commended the action against juvenile delinquency which is being taken by the authorities of this city.

Those participating in the afternoon's program were Mrs. Edith Scott, Mrs. Emma Marshall, Mrs. Marie Marine, and the county president, Mrs. Tillie Van Gundy. After the benediction the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Juanita Nisley, served tempting refreshments.

Burma Missionary Addresses Joy Circle At Meeting Monday

Mrs. Richard McLean, president of the Joy Circle of the First Baptist Church, was hostess to a record number of members who met at her home on Leesburg Avenue, Monday evening, for the February business meeting and program.

Miss Jean McCoy had charge of the devotionals and program, presenting as guest speaker, Mrs. L. B. Rodgers, who with her husband spent 32 years in Burma as missionaries. She had various curios and relics of her stay in that country, along with an assortment of their clothing which all was of timely and especial interest to all.

At the conclusion of the address, Mrs. McLean served tempting refreshments at small tables which were decorated in keeping with a St. Valentine motif.

Loyal Friends Class

Combining Lincoln's birthday and St. Valentine's Day in festivities, twenty-three members of The Loyal Friends Class of The South Side Church of Christ enjoyed a most entertaining affair when they held their monthly class meeting at the lovely home of Dr. and Mrs. John G. Jordan. The long living room was most attractively decorated with winter greenery for the event.

Mr. C. B. Tillis had charge of the short business session and Dr. Jordan led in devotionals.

Mrs. Jordan had charge of the program and read the condensed story of "Abe Lincoln's Other Mother" entitled "He Loved Me Truly" which was well received. A cleverly planned Valentine contest entitled, "If Cupid Grew Up To Be A Modern Man," was conducted for the members' amusement. Each guest and member was presented with attractive Valentines after which Mrs. India Hooks and Miss Beatrice Taylor, special guests for the evening, rendered several Valentine love songs for the enjoyment of all present.

Mrs. Jordan assisted by Mrs. Loren Perry, served a dainty and most appetizing dessert course at the close of this unusual meeting.

$10,000 Race Program Set Up For Fair

With the size of the purses increased and the value of the stakes definitely fixed at $10,000 each, prospects for top-flight harness racing at Fayette County's annual Fair the last week of next July took on a bright hue in spite of wartime uncertainties.

After weeks of planning and consideration both from the point of view of the horsemen and spectators, the four-day program has been completed and sent to fair and racing magazines so owners and trainers may know what it is and make their plans accordingly.

A total of $10,000 has been hung up for the trotters and pacers to race for. That is one of the biggest, if not the biggest, aggregate purse ever offered at a Fair here in recent years. The speed committee, headed by George A. Steen and made up of Frank E. Ellis, Walter Sollars and John C. Cannon, came to the conclusion during the early stages of their planning that it would be necessary to increase the purses to compete with the big tracks operating in the east, and the Fair Board backed it up by authorizing the raise.

Mutuel Betting Again Plans are being made for mutuel betting under state supervision the same as at the Fair for the last two years. The photo finish will be used again this year, too.

Members of the board and speed committee agree that this system of betting not only adds zest to the sport but also has been a cause to attract larger crowds. The play last year, the figures show, was considerably greater than the first year and a further increase is expected this year.

Although the ban imposed on racing right after the first of this year is still in effect, board members are hopeful that it either will be lifted before summer or that it will not be applied to county fair racing. War plant absenteeism in the industrial areas—primarily in California—was responsible for application of the ban, the war mobilizer said. Four days of fair racing could hardly interfere much with

Office Boys Tighten Grip On API Loop

The Office Boys today had a hold on the lead of the API Men's League strengthened three-fold by the clean sweep they scored over the Tappets at the Main Street alleys Monday night.

The Tappets were, up until Monday night, second in succession and only two games behind the Office boys. They bowed low before the Office onslaught—a series of victories that were scored purely on the Office team's bowling merit because the two teams had identical handicaps—49 pins each.

In third place, the engineers took the end games from the Foremen in a see-saw match that kept the two teams guessing as to which would be on the winning end next.

The Inspection keglers chalked up two victories right off the bat when they met the Top-Hats. In the last game, however, the Top-papers snapped out of their lethargy and ripped through for a win.

Turning in the second clean sweep of the evening, the Pushers downed the Production outfit in a one, two three series of wins that left the Production boys eating the Pushers' dust.

had at the Japs as soon as Germany has been defeated and, meanwhile, would do all it could to strengthen its forces already engaged in that conflict.

Russia's future role in the Pacific has been a subject of speculation since the United Nations conference was set for San Francisco on April 25. That date is the last for Moscow to give Japan official notice if Russia wishes to denounce her non-aggression pact with Tokyo. Otherwise, the treaty renews itself for five years.

Algiers was described as the President's last stopping place abroad before leaving for Washington.

The White House announcement said Secretary of State Stettinius, en route from Moscow to make official calls in Liberia, southwest Africa, Brazil and then to the inter-American conference in Mexico City, was waiting to see the President in Alexandria where he reported on meetings with Foreign Commissar Molotov in Moscow. The conferences were described as "altogether satisfactory."

Ambassador John G. Winant also met the President in the Middle East, traveling by air from London.

Two more ambassadors, Jefferson Caffery, from Paris, and Alexander Kirk from Rome were met by the President in Algiers.

Mr. Roosevelt was reported to have brought the three ambassadors up to date on all that took place in the Crimea conference as well as to advise them fully regarding his meetings with the rulers of Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Ethiopia.

Newsman were cautioned not to speculate on the whereabouts of the President at this time. It was stated, however, that when the President reaches the White House he will have traveled about 14,000 miles, more than half way around the world.

At no time during his journey, the statement said, was he beyond almost instantaneous reach of the White House or Washington officials.

At Sevastopol, the statement said, Mr. Roosevelt saw "scenes of stark destruction by the Germans" and lacked words to describe adequately such devastation.

"Only six buildings out of thousands," it added, were left in useful condition when the Nazis fled.

In the dark hours of the next morning, the president motored to an air field where Foreign Commissar Molotov and a guard of honor bade him farewell.

Airplanes of the United States Air Transport Command flew him south to Egypt in five and one-half hours. Transporting the chief executive from a climate of snow-capped mountains of the Crimea to the sands and tropical scenery of the Nile delta, Cairo, where the president and Churchill met in December, 1943, and traveled together to meet Stalin in Teheran was within a few minutes "air reach" of his stopping place on this visit.

Aboard a man-of-war at anchor at Great Bitter Lake, Mr. Roosevelt received King Farouk shortly before noon. Guests included Admiral William D. Leahy, the president's chief of staff; Mrs. John Boettiger, the president's daughter; and Harry Hopkins, his special assistant. Haile Selassie was received later in the afternoon.

In his talk with Selassie, the president was said to have stressed communications between the United States and Ethiopia—particularly by air. The two stakes and set them all at $1,000 apiece. The stakes, or fees as they are sometimes called, however, are expected to bring in enough to cut down the cost to the board. The amount will be determined by the number of entries.

On the four-day program are four "open class" races with a value of $500 each. One of these races is on Wednesday, the opening day, one on Friday and two on Saturday, the last day. The Thursday program is made up entirely of stake races.

Six of the races are for pacers, five for trotters and one, the last race of the closing day, is a handicap for both.
Good Horses Expected
Members of the board have expressed the conviction that the class of horses will be as good or better this year as in any in history. They reason that with the Fair here the first one of consequence in the state again, there will be little competition for horses. They also feel that because of the early date many owners and trainers will come here to "feel out" their horses. And, although the Fair does come early, horsemen have assured the speed committee—and they are backed up by experience of past seasons—that it is late enough for horses to have been thoroughly conditioned. By the same token, they are convinced there is an advantage in having "fresh" horses. Many horses raced at Marion and North Randall (Cleveland) also are expected to come here.

The permanent barns on the Fairgrounds will accommodate 165 horses and committeemen expect them all to be filled. There are portable stalls stored there that can be erected under tent tops if needed.

It will be several weeks before a reasonably accurate estimate of the size of the fields can be made by the committee but it will be able to "get a line" on the prospects by the middle of March after the stake entries are named. The first stake payments of 2 percent are due March 10, the second 2 percent April 10 and the final payments of 1 percent at the time of declaration at 10 A.M. the day before the race is scheduled.

The purses are to be divided among the first five horses after 10 percent has been set aside for the race winner. The distribution of the remainder is to be 45, 25, 15, 10 and 5 percent for each heat.

TOUGHEST BATTLE RAGING ON IWO JIMA AS TOKYO BLASTED AGAIN BY B-29S

Philippines-based bombers on their daily patrols of the China Sea from Indo-China to Formosa added to destruction wrought by Superforts.

Superfortresses making their biggest raid on Tokyo, knocked out 66 Japanese planes yesterday and scored many direct hits in the Nakajima Musashina aircraft factory, returning pilots reported today.

A Japanese Imperial communication broadcast today claimed 21 raiding B-29s were shot down and only four Japanese interceptors lost.

Actually, said Maj. Gen. Curtis Le May, commanding the 21st bomber command, three Superforts were lost in the attack which cost the Japanese 21 fighters definitely shot down, 20 probably destroyed and 25 damaged.

Big fires were reported left blazing in Tokyo by the attack. Three Superforts, out of formation which may have been numbered 150 bombers, failed to return to their Marianas bases from a successful raid on Tokyo's Nakajima Musashina aircraft factory.

The jittery capital reported a new upheaval in IGs totalitarian political party, with more politicians quitting in protest over the government's failure to meet American onslaughts or domestic criticism.

The controlled press warned that the thundering battle raging on Iwo Jima demonstrated powerful American forces could land on the home islands.

Tokyo reported 20,000 marines were battling for control of Iwo. The U. S. invasion fleet slowly encircled the island, maintaining an incessant bombardment of Japanese positions, particularly hidden gun replacements firing down on the almost unprotected casualties.

"Casualties in the south were light," Nimetz said, "but on the open slopes west of the airfield our forces were being resisted bitterly and casualties were more numerous."

Work-or-Jail Sub
An hour after receiving a memo from President Roosevelt requesting speedy enactment of work-or-jail legislation, the Senate military committee voted to consider a much milder substitute.

Senators Kilgore (D-W. Va.), Wagner (D-N.Y.), Ferguson (R-Mich.) and Ball (R-Minn.) joined Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) as co-authors of the new measure.

It would authorize the War Manpower Commission, under direction of War Mobilizer Byrnes, to set employment ceilings in designated plants or areas and to regulate or even prohibit the hiring of new workers by employers.

The maneuver at least temporarily displaced the House-approved work-or-jail bill.

It was to the latter measure Mr. Roosevelt referred in a memorandum to Senate Majority Leader Barkley. It said:

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, Feb. 20—AP—Wheat was independently firm today, opening 1/4 to 1/2 higher than yesterday's close and gaining strength on reported mill buying. Commission Houses sold the May contract at $1.64, 1/4, which at times reached the up swing.

Reports reached the trading pit that a strong government demand for flour would develop late this week. This combined with rumors that alcohol manufacturers are experiencing difficulties with low grade corn, and may switch to wheat, gave added strength to the market.

There was little interest in corn. Bookings were 265,000 bushels and there was no buying incentive.

At the close wheat was 1/2 lower to 1/4 higher, than yesterday's close. May $1.64. Corn was 1/4 to 1/2 lower, May $1.12 1/2. Oats were 1/4 to 1/2 lower, May 66 1/2. Rye was 1/4 to 1/2 lower, May $1.14 1/2. Barley was 1/4 to 1/2 lower, May $1.09 1/2.
